

Raising awareness

People are the most important component in any security system. Uninformed or unthinking users or administrators can make decisions for their own convenience that nullify all technical security measures. Aware and observant users and administrators can, however, reduce the likelihood and impact of security incidents even where only a few technical measures have been taken. Ideally organisations should aim to combine secure technology and security-conscious people into a truly robust system.

JANET Training ^[1] holds courses and events centred on Security Awareness.

Source URL: <https://community-stg.jisc.ac.uk/library/janet-services-documentation/raising-awareness>

Links

[1] <http://www.ja.net/training>